Mr. John Dodson, whose illness has been oned in this correspondence, died this nention between 1 and 2 o'clock, in the with year of his age. A few days ago, g a visit to his farm in Dinwiddie ate to superintend the preparations for ing his spring crops, Mr. Dodson unung his exposed himself, and contracted svere cold. He returned to the city, and went to bed with a chill, which was followthe a fever that never left him till death grack him. The immediate cause of his death was crysipelas, which attacked the beain, rendering him delirious and uncondans for some days. Few citizens were the known or more generally respected this section than Mr. Dodson, and few be more sadly missed or more sincerely amented. He was a gentleman of rare culture of mind, and possessed a store of infernation. To these accomplishments were added great courtesy of manners, dignity of garing, kindness of heart, and a peculiarly social and attractive disposition. He was educated at Randolph-Macon College, studied for the bar, and for some time practiced his He was the first mayor of Peersburg elected by the people under the charter of 1850, which made us a city, and he made a capital executive officer. Mr. Dodson was possessed of a large and valuable estate in Dinwiddle county-between six and seven thousand acres-and also of valuable property in this city. Ever since the war he had manifested deep interest in the subject of immigration as the terest means necessary to the building up of our section of the State, and by his labors s instrumental in the establishing of one of more flourishing colonies of immigrants the adjacent counties, and up to the time He took very deep interest in the sericultural fairs of our State, and was an Heer of the State and Petersburg societies.
